The Beartooth Mountains are located in south central Montana and northwest Wyoming, and sit upon the larger Beartooth Plateau, the largest true high elevation plateau in the United States. This rugged wilderness requires a home designed to withstand a harsh environment.

The Beartooth by MossCreek is designed to provide rustic luxury in just such an environment. A sturdy exterior of stone and wood are ready to hold of a harsh environment. Log snow rails are set to keep snow on the roof and away from windows and doors.

On the interior the Beartooth uses open plan living to create gracious entertaining space. The main level features a vaulted great room, home office, and a generous master suite. The upper level features two bedrooms and open loft that looks down to the great room
